prim and unconsortable, and their alarm when any portion of their toilet is disarranged is amusing, accustomed as we are to the untrammelled freedom of American children.

The beauty of face and tasteful attire of young America often furnishes a text for the foreign writers who come to this country; the children here are not attired in the old-fashioned homely style of those of England, nor do they look like dolls or miniature men and women like those of France.

Barring the extremely long dresses, our little ones are dressed with due regard to hyginere, comfort and beauty, and grow up well-formed men and women with figures that leave little to be desired.

Children nowadays are picturesque accessories to their mammas afterneon teas, and little grifs who are old enough frequently assist their mammas by handing around the dainty little cups of Russian teaupon quaintly decorated salvers. The costumes worn on these occasions are usually of pale colors, such as Wattenn blue, Pompadour green, or even the pinkish heliotropes and ivory whites in veiling, wash silk or Canton crepe.

Fanniers have invaded the domain of childhood, and when not too obtrusive are becoming to half-grown girls with tall, thin figures and long, undeveloped waists. The backs are almost invariably full, but the fronts may be slightly draped, ornamented with bows, passementeric or ribbon velvet, set on in rows about the foot.

For damp days the tailor suits made of the socked cheviots and serges will be found to mely serviceable. For seaside and country was nothing seems to usure the place of plain and fancy French thannels, which now wrought in such lovely combinations. If course the way

Of course the wee woman is polka dotted, zebra striped and biased just like her mamma, for hasn't she quite as much right to be robed in the latest style, even if it is inartistic and conspicuous?

The yoke is the prevailing form of boddice, rivalled, however, by the Taureador inclest or the Swiss boddice, which is worm indifferently with any skirt, the guimpe of India linen appearing above. Loose Fedora fronts of some soft material, salor waists and chirred and pleated boddices of every description are in style. Percale waists, either dotted, striped or plain, are very useful, as they can be easily changed, and are nice with woolen skirts.

Provident methers are already engaged in making up the wardrobes of the rising generation, and an excellent model for wast goods is of spetted percale, with full, round skirt and gathered bodice, finished at the neck with a Henry II, frill of Swiss embroidery. The sleeves are full and the cuffs are of the embroidery. A leathern belt or a wide surah mash is an addition to this pretty and simple costume.

A gown for a miss of fourteen is of ocean blue surge with akirts pleated as far as the hips; the front is scantily draped and a bor-der of black Soutache ornaments the bottom the folded bodies opens over V's of black vel-yet, and beneath the high draped sleeves are vet, and beneath the high draped server tight ones of velvet.

Both extremely simple and elaborate make prevails in the little gowns. Nothing more simple and sweet could well be imagined than the dainty zephyr and chambray gowns, which are made with gathered waists and full skirts, the latter tucked or simply hemmed.

Bandanna and tartan plaid ginghams make tax and picturesque dresses. They are often cay and picturesque dresses. They are often cut on the bias and edged with a tiny bias cut on the bias and edged with a tiny bias ruffle of fold.

Stripes of all kinds are popular, a stylish little suit being of gray and red striped zephyr ginghams. The woke and cuffs were red, around the belt were deep tabs of red, orna-mented with narrow white braid, and about six inches above the hem was a band of the lilue, white and scarlet reefers with the regulation naval insignia are worn by little girls as well as boys. Some of the blue ones have the sailor collar and cuffs of crimson or prise as well as boys. Some of the blue ones have the sailor collar and cuffs of crimson or white and vice versa.

Elack is decidedly in favor for children's, gowns and hats, black India, lawn and batists all being used. It is a very sensible fashion, but the black should be relieved with colored ribbon trimming, embroidery or feather stitching. A decided innovation is a Gretchen gown of black India square-necked and sleeveless; on the bodiee is embroidered spray of cowslips, and on the skirt are five two yellow Tom Thumb ribbon run through black lace beading; the guimpe is of yellow silk, with black lace at neck, at wrist. Little girls in mourning are wearing black batiste with white pin dots, or the sheer black organdles with tiny white flowerets strewn on the surface.

Elack mull, bastiste and silk caps and hats are much worn, often a great rosette of naries picot edge ribbon gwing a note of brill-liant color to the otherwise sombre headgear.

In these days when woman's ingenuity contrives many elegant looking objects from humble beginnings, there is much that can be done with a wicker basket, a pot of enamel paint and a few yards of silesia, dotted muslin and val lace.

I saw a lovely baby crib the other day which looked as if it might have cost twenty-five dollars and in reality it cost but five. It was made of a common splint clothes basket, painted white and mounted upon four legs, finished with easters; a deep valance of pale blue cambrie veiled with/dotted muslin edged with val lace concealed the legs, two broomsticks which had been treated to the paint were fastened to the sides of the basket and the half of a barrel hoop was nailed securely to the top of each of them, and on it was draped the soft transparent blue line, laced edged curtains which fell about the head and protected baby from the air; a comfort of white cheese cloth tied with blue and a dainty hemstitched pillow case and embroidered crib cover completed the outfit.

The gown in the cut is of gray English homespun trimmed with brad; the jacket is of gray with cuts and reverse of marine blue velvet; the ubttons are gilt.

OUR ATHLETICS IN VIRGINIA.

Our Boat Club Preparing For the Rowing

THE FIRST STROKE MADE YESTERDAY.

Crew to be Formed to Defend the Challenge Cup-Sports in General Everywhere.

Three different times the boat-house of the Virginia Boat Club has been thoroughly cleaned preparatory to the formal opening season, but twice the muddy James river put in its veto and laid siege to the building. Usually the rowing season opens on March 1st, or as soon thereafter as practicable.

This year, however, not a stroke had been rowed until yesterday afternoon, when a few members of the ciub met on Mayo's Island and had a little trial trip.

The bont-house is in first-class shape and ready for a successful season.

The float is in position and the gangway, which forms the communication between the house proper and the float, has been completed.

house proper and the float, has been completed.

To-morrow the season will open formally, and for the next six or seven months some lively scenes will be witnessed on the James river every afternoon.

During the coming week the necessary steps will be taken to form a crew which is to defend the challenge cup of the Virginia Amateur Rowing Association, to be rowed for by four-cared gig crews on Saturday, July 4th.

Of the old crew that won the cup two years ago, up to the present time only two members have declared their willingness to row for the cup again—Messrs. R. Broadnax and George Pegram.

In all probability Mr. Dorsey E. Cullen will take a hand in the coming struggle, and a fourth member will no doubt be found without any difficulty.

Besides, there will be at least one more crew go into training for a four-cared junior gig race, and the coming regatta promises to be an event of rare interest.

an event of rare interest.

OLLEGE BOAT CLUB.

The boat club that has been started under the auspices of the Athletic Association of Richmond College is progressing very nicely.

Arrangements have been made by that club with the Virginia Boat Club by which the college boys will have a crew of five admitted to the boat-house of the latter, where they can store their boat when received.

The five men who make up the crew will be admitted to the privileges of the boat-house against the payment of a small sum per month for rent and storage.

The club has given an order for a working boat, but until its arrival the crew will have the use of the "Olympic" of the Virginias.

The crow has been at the boat-house several afternoons last week to get things in shape, and they will begin rowing early this week.

The rowing interests in this city will receive a new impetus this week, for at the instigation of Secretary Candlish, of the Young Men's Christian Association, arrangements have been made by members of that organization for the organization for a Young Men's Christian Association, arrangements have been made by weining the prospective members of this club will meet in the parlor of the Association building, of which Mr. S. W. Travers, president of the association, will be chairman.

designs. John R. West, R. S. Bosher and other members of the board of directors have promised to assist the undertaking financially and otherwise, and it is safe to say that its success seems to be assured.

The business men of this city will also have an opportunity to show their liberality, and in view of the high degree of public spirit which always manifests itself when appealed to in this city, it will not be very difficult to raise the amount necessary to put the club on its feet.

PLEASURE BOATING.

For the present it is only intended to develop one feature of the aquatic sport, that of pleasure beating.

It is possible, however, that in the near future the Young Men's Christian Association of this city will be represented by a crew in the annual regatts.

However, the securing of racing boats is a rather expensive undertaking, and will therefore for the present not be considered.

It is the intention to secure about half a dozen of pleasure-boats of the most improved construction, and a floating boat-house will be constructed at an early date.

If the necessary arrangements can be made with the proper parties, the boat-house will be moored somewhere on the lower end of Mayo's Island.

Otherwise, some point on the river in the lower part of the city will be selected.

In this connection it may be well to state that a wrong impression has been created by a publication made elsewhere to the effect that the new club would use flat-bottom and keel-bottom boats, and not gigs and shells as the Richmond Boat Club.

The facts in the matter are that the Virginia Boat Club on Mayo's Island own a number of race boats, consisting of gigs and shells, but also possesses a half a dozen pleasure boats, which are all round-bottom boats of the latest pattern.

The new boat club, which is to be started pattern.

The new boat club, which is to be started this week, will not be provided with clumsy skiffs and tubs as they are issually found on the river, but their boats will be equally as good as the pleasure boats of the Wirginias.

NOT BEEN POPULAR.

The fact is that there have been few decent

The fact is that there have been few decent row boats on the James river heretofore, and the sport of rowing has, therefore, not been very popular with our young people.

A change to the better will certainly be brought about this summer, and that the young ladies will also be benefited by this change goes without saying, for any number of them will have the privilege of enjoying a spin down the river.

The Virginia boys have always been very fond of taking their lady friends out rowing, and in order to increase their facilities they will increase their fleet of pleasure boats by two this season.

Besides, they have ordered a new four-oared

Besides, they have ordered a new four-oared working boat.

The new club of the Young Men's Christian Association will probably set aside three days of the week for ladies' days.

The Virginia Amateur Rowing Association, which at one time last season was on a fair way to destruction, starts in this year under very favorable auspices, and its prospects never have been brighter before.

At its last annual meeting a very good selection of officers has been secured.

Mr. Carter R. Bishop, the popular and successful president of the Appomattox Boat Club in Petersburg, who has been elected president of the association, will no doubt use his influence in the interest of the association. He will be ably assisted by Secretary J. L. Hill and Treasurer William Gray Watson, of the Virginia Club.

As soon as entries will be received for the coming regatta responses will be made by at least four of the clubs that belong to the association for the four-oared gig race alone, and besides there will be participants enough in the other races from the various clubs to make the programme a very interesting one. make the programme a very interesting one.

Athletics at Richmond College are at a

Athletics at Richmond College are at a boom this season.

The students of the college maintain an athletic association which has control of every description of athletics.

The officers of the association for the prespear are as follows: President, R. G. Hiden, vice president, Frank W. Duke, treasurer, W. H. Ryland; secretary, Harvey Hatcher, Jr. There are committees on foot-ball, base-ball, tennis and field day and the executive committee, which is composed of the officers of the association and the chairmen of the various committees.

the association and the charmen of the various committees.

Field day, or the annual exhibition of the brawn and muscle of the college, will be held on the 28th instant, and the boys are daily practicing for the contests in running, jumping, etc. Field Day is held under the auspicees of the Athletic Association, and, with the assistance of Dr. Ryland and Professor Boatwight, it is thought that the field of 1891 will be the best and most satisfactory yet held.

Medals will be awarded for the following events: Mile run, mile walk, 220 yards dash, pole vault, broad jump, high jump, gymnasum drill, tennis and hurdle race. In addition to the above the association offers a handsome gold medal for the best all-around athlete, this to be determined by the number of "points" a contestant makes in the events above mentioned.

The great success of the fine base-ball team of the Athletic Association last year, and the cortial reception which was given them on their return from their victorious trips to Charlottesville and Lexington, is well known. It played and beat the University of Virginia, Washington and Lee, Virginia Military Institute and Virginia Brights teams, thereby winning the amateur championship of the State. S. S. Havely was captain and T. G. Busis manager of the team.

Unfortunately but two of the team returned this year, and the boys have not organized a team yet which they think will do credit to their college and their reputation.

The association has also two regularly organized and equipped foot ball teams. The first team played the Randelph-Macon and Washington and Lee teams this season, loosing both games by a small margin. D. H. Rucker is captain of the team and J. E. Etchison, Jr., manager.

The second team played one game with the second team of Randelph-Macon, which was also lost.

The association has a complete course of gymnasium instruction and drilling, under the direction of Mr. C. T. Taylor, and Dr. Robert's system is being used. The outlook for athletics is very bright this year, and its friends are very hopeful, as there was never before such an interest felt in sports among the college boys.

There will be a preliminary contest for the tennis medal at the college courts next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when the number of contestants will be narrowed down to four. These four will have to contest for the medal on field day.

An athletic club has just been formed by members of the Young Men's Christian Association at Hampton, Va.

The sports of the club during the coming season will consist of base-ball, sailing, rowing, lawn tanns, outlings, and rambles.

The association of that district is preparing to organize a Young Men's Christian Association Base-Ball League, which will embrace Newport News, Hampton, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Bersley
